Victoria's Secret model Behati Prinsloo may spend much of her time in lingerie, but that hasn't stopped her from teaming up with Los Angeles-based design duo Brian Kim and Olga Nazarova of This Here Very Moment to create an off-duty wardrobe of comfortable, chic, punk rock-inspired coats, T-shirts, jeans and zip trousers. "It's really wearable stuff with a little twist," she says of the 12-piece collection, which hits local stores Satine and The Well this month. The collection is versatile too. Explains Prinsloo, "I love styling the shirts with patchwork jeans and the big coat over it with a hat. You can dress it up with a pair of high heels and some red lipstick, or dress it down for everyday streetwear. It definitely goes from day into night." While her newly crowned People's Sexiest Man Alive-fiance Adam Levine has design experience, Prinsloo resisted seeking his advice. "We have a similar vibe when it comes to clothing, but I did this all by myself with the THVM team," she says. Levine wasn't kept in the dark completely; the singer was granted his own private runway show. "I showed him everything, and he loves the end result. The shirts are definitely his favorite. He was just so proud of me," she says, giggling. "He loved it all!" So do we. thvm.com
